ASDAD is an arcade-style game set in a 2D, top-down, First Person Shooter, platformer world. The player must navigate his way through each stage to unlock the next one, while avoiding deadly enemies and collecting gems to open up new areas. You'll have to take down bosses, obstacles, and enemies as you hunt down diamonds to build up your power and unlock new characters. ASDAD can be played locally, in split-screen with 2 controllers, or online using the new matchmaking feature! New Features: Extra mode "Race for the Idol" where the first player to reach the golden idol at the end of the stage wins! Opponents can use their attacks to hurt you by crashing into the gems you are collecting! The player with the largest number of diamonds at the end of the round wins! My-Controller Mode for local multiplayer! Tell me your thoughts! What do you think about this game? Let me know in the comments or by giving me a shout on Twitter @CheatCC, I'd love to hear from you!

The Future of CheatCC It was time to expand CheatCC. I've been wanting to do this for ages and I felt like I was just living in fear of it not being able to become what I've always dreamed of. To be honest, I was also scared and didn't know if I'd be able to do it. I've worked long and hard to get to this point and I know it can be successful, but I'm also just as scared as ever of screwing it up. The biggest problem I've seen is that there are no forums on the internet for any indie developer. Well, at least not one that actually shows any meaningful feedback or where you could read comments or suggestions. For CheatCC, this is a great problem. I'm planning to launch the site in the next few weeks (hopefully by then the site will have more of the features we have planned), but I do not have any idea as to how I can actually get people to comment or even read the review I can write for them. I've started several threads on the forums of /r/IndieGameDev but they all just go into a hard-drive-lock-screen due to spam issues. I've also been reading all of the comments here to get some pointers. Honestly, I'm looking for suggestions on where I

Electrochemically tunable carrier dynamics and charge diffusion in polycrystalline silicon. We report the first experimental measurements of carrier drift (n-type) and diffusion (p-type) in polycrystalline silicon. Electrostatic fields have been applied to tune carrier drift velocities and diffusion lengths and produce strong anisotropy in carrier drift and diffusion. The observed variation of carrier drift and diffusion can be understood within the framework of semiclassical mechanics. The results presented here could be important for the design and optimization of novel low cost and large area low power sensing devices in silicon based electronics. The effect of metformin on leptin secretion, adipose tissue oxidative stress and weight loss in obese diabetic patients on anti-hypertensive treatment. Prevention and treatment of obesity-related cardiovascular risk factors (i.e. dyslipidaemia, hypertension, hyperglycaemia) can be achieved by using dual therapies. Metformin is an effective anti-hyperglycaemic agent that has also shown potential cardiovascular benefits, although additional studies are required. The present study was designed to determine the effect of 24-week metformin administration on biochemical markers of cardiovascular risk and leptin secretion in obese type 2 diabetic subjects on anti-hypertensive treatment. Thirty-eight obese type 2 diabetic subjects who were not taking any other glucose-lowering medication were enrolled in the study. Body mass index, waist circumference, blood pressure, glycaemic control, lipid profile, fasting plasma glucose, plasma glucose during oral glucose tolerance test, plasma leptin, fatty acids in plasma and fasting free radical and oxidative stress markers in erythrocytes were determined before and after metformin administration. At baseline, patients had impaired lipid profile, systemic and vascular oxidative stress and elevated leptin levels. Metformin treatment significantly reduced body mass index, waist circumference, fasting plasma glucose and HbA1c levels, while lipid levels, blood pressure and oxidative stress markers, including plasma thiobarbituric acid-reactive substances and erythrocyte total lipid hydroperoxides significantly decreased. Metformin administration also tended to reduce fasting plasma leptin levels, which correlated positively with the amount of metformin taken. No significant associations between changes in body mass index, waist

The share price of Peugeot has fallen by 42.2% in the past six months and the company has announced that, despite having made a positive contribution to its balance sheet, the carmaker will have to seek to raise capital in the coming months. Peugeot made a pre-tax profit of €141.5m (£131.8m) in the second quarter of the year but its shares have fallen by 42.2% over the past six months, compared to a 17.2% fall for the CAC 40 over the same time. In recent weeks the carmaker has been holding talks with several banks to raise fresh capital, including being assessed by four banks including BNP Paribas and Credit Agricole. The company has also been approached by sovereign wealth funds. While some investors have questioned why Peugeot, a carmaker with a workforce of 28,000, has not yet been successful in finding a bank to invest in the business, the company says it cannot wait for a letter of comfort from a regulator on its finances. “We have an alternative financing framework and have been seeking to supplement this with additional capital for the company since last year,” said a Peugeot spokeswoman. “The company wants to generate additional value for its shareholders but needs the right financial framework to do so.” The company says it will “address the needs of its shareholders by seeking to raise capital in the coming months”. Peugeot has made a net loss of €138.8m (£128.1m) in 2015 and in April this year the company made a net loss of €81.2m (£74.4m). The carmaker is growing its customer base and making progress on localisation as it prepares for its European debut in 2018. The company has doubled sales this year to 2.3m vehicles, although sales in France are down 4% and in Spain sales are down 27%. The company is also selling more vehicles

, Category A: Bad Housing/Buildings in Brooklyn: no time is better than now There's one thing these two blockbusters have in common: when they start shooting, they went from the census tract with the largest percentage of residents on the Tier 1 list of 41 to the block with the largest number of bad housing/buildings in Brooklyn, within one year. The new Target/Supervalu/West Side supermarket is replacing the somnolent former Food Emporium (image on the right, in a strange windowless 1950s building on Avenue X close to Mr. W's). Target's new store has two tenants on the ground floor, one of them being #3 restaurant, The Kitchen by (famous celebrity chef) David Chang. It also has another grocery store right next door. The Supervalu, which opened 3 months earlier, was #3 on the New York Times list of TOP STORES TO WATCH this year. Target says this used to be the legendary Food Emporium (which closed as a tenant, four years ago) but that its owner 'decided to rebuild.' As of now, the store's parking lot is still empty. There are 17 apartments on the upper floors. Two outer blocks with many empty spaces. * * * 111 Linden Avenue, Borough Park - (map) (539) 328-2619 2013 = 2,200 residents/1.5 units in buildings of 10 stories/a density of 14.8 k/b: 18 2-bedrooms, 18 studios (for rent), 4 vacant.
