Rachel Hatton covers women's hockey for ESPN.com. You can follow her on Twitter @H_Hatton. The city of Pyeongchang is one of the coldest cities in the United States, freezing in winter and baking in the summer. But the Olympic village isn't alone in its cold conditions: the rink it shares with thousands of athletes is in a constant state of chill. Michelle Edge/Getty Images Hockey fans aren't the only ones who want to see the U.S. women's hockey team gain Olympic gold this year. But the players themselves are also a bit of a fanatical group. This comes through in the form of an occasional odd custom, most notably a long mustache served for dinner at the team's hotel ahead of the 2010 Winter Games in Vancouver, B.C. Soo Chan/Getty Images The U.S. women's hockey team started playing in the first modern Olympic hockey tournament, the Winter Olympics, in Sarajevo, Yugoslavia, in Sarajevo, Yugoslavia, in 1992. Though far from a glamorous event, it gave the U.S. women's team a chance to compete against some of the best players on the planet. We have not won a medal in women's hockey at the Olympic Games since our first appearance in 1994, but the U.S. women's hockey team hopes the rich fibrin as a biomaterial for GBR: case reports. This case reports will demonstrate the effectiveness of a novel platelet-rich fibrin (PRF) biomaterial combined with a TGF-beta agonist, platelet-rich fibrin as an adjunct to guided bone regeneration. It was hypothesized that this biomaterial is clinically effective in promoting tissue regeneration at a site of non-healing. Three different cases were selected: 1. The outcome of GBR for an open tibial fracture with a dehisced non-union; 2. a sinus tract repair case due to extensive chronic pilonidal sinus disease; and, 3. an orbital defect repair case. The results were examined in terms of defining and assessing the clinical, radiographic and histological results. Postoperatively, all three cases showed progression of gingival augmentation without any donor site morbidity, but a prompt and sustained amount of bone formation. A favorable clinical outcome was obtained, and clinical probing assessment showed an absence of recurrent disease and an adequate amount of bone regeneration in all three cases. For sinus tract and orbital defect cases, the morbidity and cost of the two surgical procedures were outweighed by the new opportunities to improve the quality of life.

PRF is an effective and safe alternative biomaterial to other existing scaffold, graft or surgical procedures for periodontal and bone regeneration. We had a great time visiting the San Jose Museum of Art today, and I'm sure we will visit other places before we leave tomorrow. Even though we've traveled more than 3,000 miles to see the West Coast, we're not ready to leave all of its gorgeous memories behind, though. A favorite travel-related memory of mine involves standing in
