What's new in Treasure Hunter Man 2:

Cashtronauts is a supergroup of American recording artists based in Los Angeles, California. The group has included Kid Koala, Camu Tao, The Gaslamp Killer, and many more. History Cashtronauts began in 2000 when Camu Tao released a music video for the track "Kid Aids" featuring Kid Koala. This was the first time the duo of Camu and Koala had worked together. In 2001, Kid Koala and Camu worked with Flying Lotus to create the track "HUMLY LOVE", on Lotus' album Because the Internet. The following year saw the release of their first 'official' collaboration, "Blackberry Brady", which also appeared on Lotus's album Hallucinating Fish in 2003. Also in 2001, Camu started working with DJ/producer and poet Kool A.D. to release a number of records such as "Run It Up the Flagpole Yup...It's a Party!" and "Mosh Pit Cheers." After their success and popularity on internet music forums, Cashtronauts signed with DJ Klub's label, Street N' Brick Records, and began performing at The Lounge in Echo Park. Due to the demand for performances, the group produced a four-song EP, Kid Koala & Camu Tao Present: The Sandcastles, which was released in 2002 and featured three new songs as well as a cover of The Waterboys' "The Lions". In January 2004, the duo released the popular "Pebble Farm", which appeared on The Beach Boys' album Smile. After the success of "Sandcastles", two of the songs from the EP later appeared on the duo's Japanese LP, Mermaids. The success of "Sandcastles" afforded the duo a contract with the independent record label, Little Record, where they released Drowned Tweets in 2006. In 2007, the duo had three singles appear on the soundtrack to the controversial film, Garden State, opening with "Baby I've Got You". "Baby I've Got You" appeared on the short-lived Oxygen reality TV show, "Garden State Reunion". Following their success, a new LP titled Trespass was released in 2008, featuring the songs "My Song", "Fingers", "Show Me the Party", "2nd Class Citizen", "Stereo Lover", "Snooper", and "The Afterparty", along with a remix of "Wolf Down", originally
